1. CALL SCAMS

Common tactics used

Urgency: “Now na or ma-block account.”

OTP trap: “Pakibigay OTP para ma-cancel.”

Authority: “Bank security / police / government.”

Fear: “May fraud, may case, may investigation.”

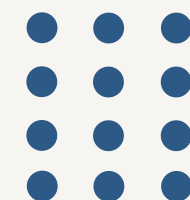

Safety practices (simple rules)

Never give OTP, PIN, password, CVV on a call. Kahit sabihin nilang “for verification.”

Hang up, then call back using an official number (back of card, official website/app).

If they pressure you: end the call. Legit companies won’t threaten you.

If caller says “Don’t tell anyone”: automatic scam.

A freelance model fell victim to a voice phishing group, who allegedly introduced themselves as customs personnel to extort money.

According to John Consulta's "24 Oras" report, the scammers called the victim, "Anna," through a messaging app and claimed she was involved in a crime.

“Gusto daw po nila i-confirm yung identity ko if this was me sending a parcel from Cebu to Singapore. Hinold daw po ito ng Post Office ng Cebu dahil may laman daw po na may illegal documents, 11 bank cards, isa roon nakapangalan sa akin, and 9 passbook. And all of these documents are under an illegal loan. So sinabi ko po pwede bang sabihin nila sa akin anong magagawa ko to cancel or clear my name,” Anna said.

She three individuals spoke to her over the phone. One of them introduced himself as a police officer in Cebu and threatened her with charges if she refuses to comply to their wishes.

Call center agent looking for side gig loses P44K cash to 'smishing'

By CONSUELO MARQUEZ, GMA News

Published December 20, 2021 11:36pm

A 21-year-old call center agent was hoping to earn more money as a bread winner of the family but instead lost more cash after she fell victim to smishing or SMS phishing.

According to a "Stand for Truth" report, Erika Sagales received a text scam offering her a job. After clicking the link from the text, she was redirected to a Whatsapp where she was tasked to do business transactions by an agent.

At first, she thought there were no red flags after learning she would earn more money. She was then asked to pay P44,000 for an investment in the business transaction but after giving the money, the agent blocked her number.

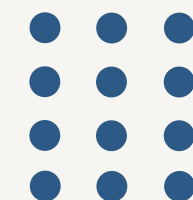

What's worse, Sagales borrowed the money from her aunt.

"Naghahanap ako ng part time job kasi 'yung kinikita ko, breadwinner kasi ako kulang so iniisip ko na makakatulong siya sakín kasi nagkaroon ako ng proof na naka-cash out ako, naka-cash out kami ng tita ko so iniisip ko na totoo siya," she said.

(I was looking for a part time job because I am not earning enough so I thought this would help me because I received proof that there is a cash out.

Sagales became a victim of a type of security attack through a text which sends a bogus

WARNING: THIS IS A SCAM

From a reader: "Good evening po. Sana makarating po sa respected authorities for urgent resolution. May loophole po kasi yung NCAP.

"Based on records, I was apprehended last February 9 (4pm), when I was staying inside my house doing social media stuff. My last visit in Manila before apprehension was February 8.

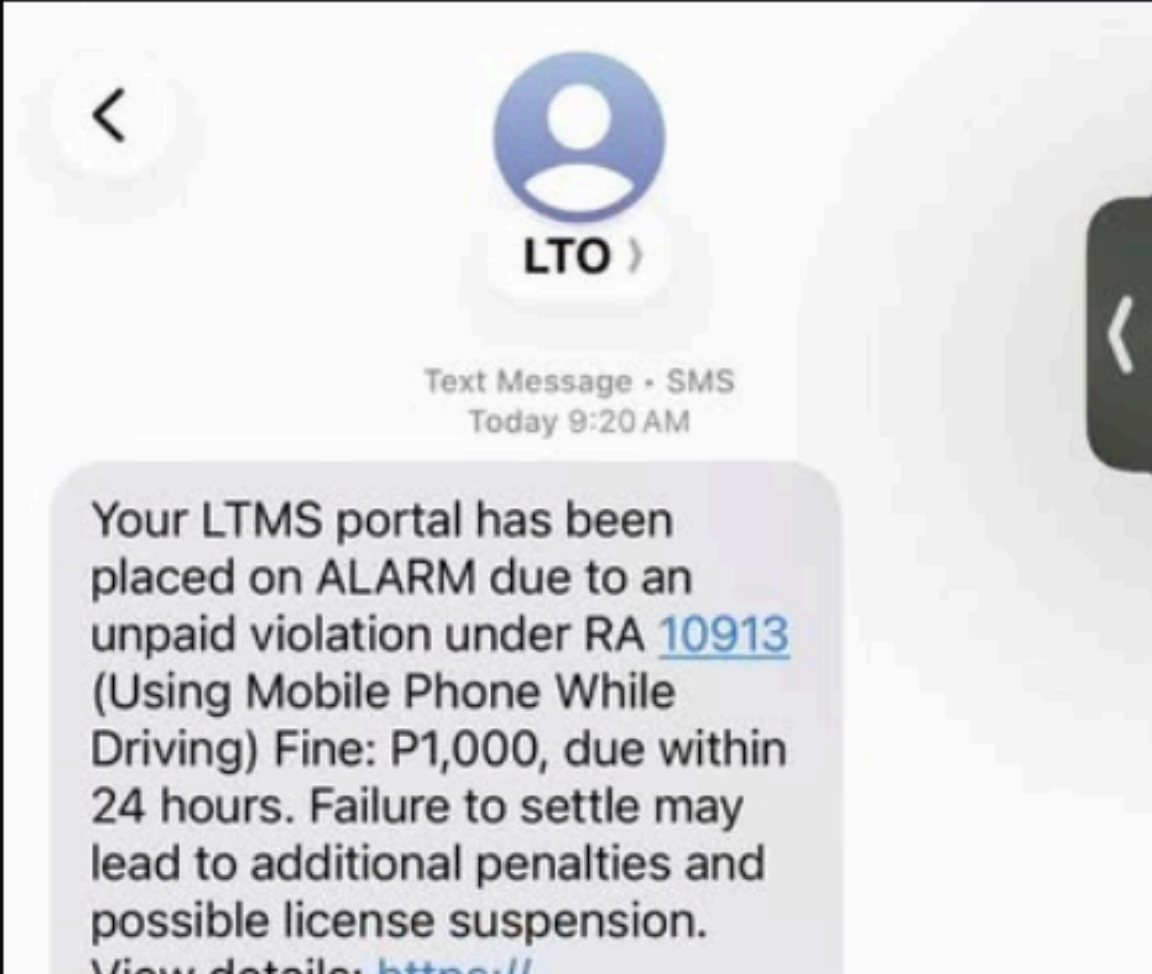

"Also, I checked LTO rules:

- 10 days to appeal
- 15 days to settle

"However, how could I appeal if I was texted/messed/alerted 15 days after I had a violation?!!! I was alerted 5 days beyond the allowed time frame to appeal!!!

"I'm not sure if I'm the only one who has experienced this. BTW, I settled it for the sake of peace of mind as the words used were 'alarmed' and 'revocation.'

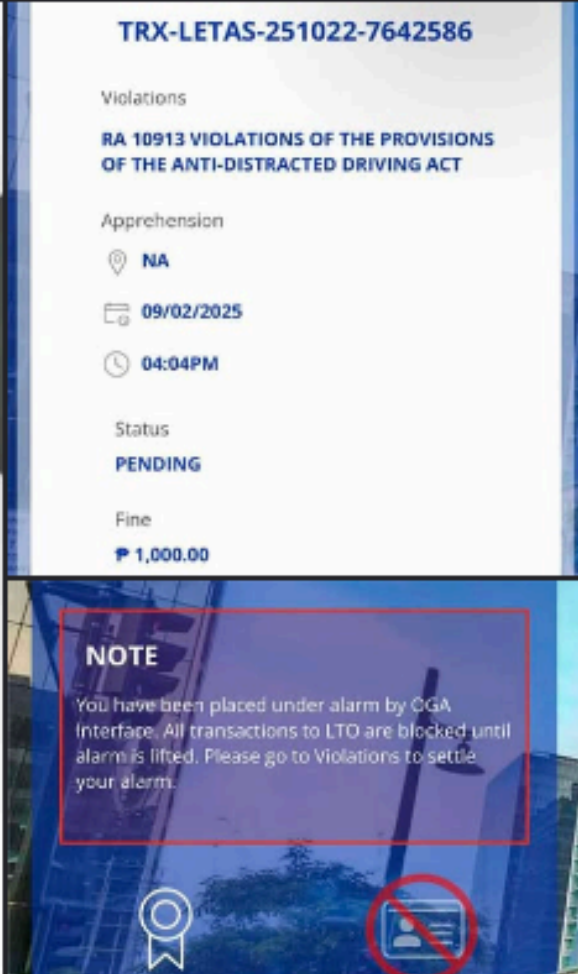

"Thank you for posting this."

Assistant principal loses P100K for hospital, debt payment to phishing scam

By GMA News

Published January 25, 2022 9:38pm

An assistant principal lost P100,000 set aside for the hospital and debt payment after she fell victim to a phishing scam, which hit a number of depositors of the Land Bank of the Philippines.

According to Ian Cruz's report on "24 Oras", Marlene Garcia of the San Matias National High School in Sto. Tomas, Pampanga said she was checking her inbox on Dec. 26 when she opened an email bearing the bank's logo.

She said the email stated that the bank needed to update her account information to add a layer of security.

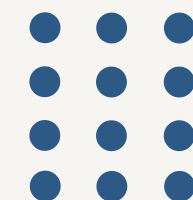

Garcia said she immediately logged into her online account and followed the process.

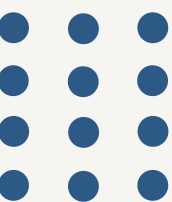

The assistant principal said that she tried at least three times to enter her one time pin (OTP) but it was invalid.

However, she received an email from the bank that she transferred an amount of P50,000 to another bank account. A minute later, she received another email, saying that she transferred another P50,000.

“Sana’y makonsensya na lang sila tapos matulungan na lang din kami ng servicing bank namin at ng DepEd (Department of Education) para kahit papaano eh mapigilan,” Garcia
